

2019 FEDERAL ELECTION PARTY RESPONSES

1. As the Commonwealth is the predominant funder of non-government schools, how will your party ensure Catholic schools remain affordable for most Australian families?

COALITION	LABOR	GREENS
The Morrison Government believes that parents should be able to choose the school that best meets the needs of their child. We are delivering on our commitment by providing a record $310 billion in recurrent funding to all schools over the coming decade (62% more funding per student, on average). Importantly, we are backing our commitment to parental choice by providing a $1.2 billion Choice and Affordability Fund over the next 10 years as schools transition to new funding arrangements. The Fund helps non-government schools and school systems to invest in their schools in ways that support parental choice, which can include keeping fees affordable, improving student wellbeing and support, lifting student performance, assisting schools in regional and remote areas and in drought-affected areas, and providing assistance to help schools to transition to needs-based funding. Importantly, we have legislated funding for schools that is truly needs-based, and enshrined in legislation the autonomy of systems, including Catholic Education Commissions, to determine how best to distribute that funding to your individual schools, because we understand that it is the systems which run the schools that best know the needs of your students and your schools.	Labor is committed to funding all schools based on a proper assessment of need, while also supporting parent choice. Labor fought alongside Catholic school parents and teachers when their funding was cut by the Liberals. Labor strongly believes that low-fee Catholic schools make a valuable contribution to schooling in Australia, and that low and middle income families should be able to choose a faith-based education in a way that doesn't put unacceptable pressure on the family budget. Labor will work with Catholic school systems to ensure Commonwealth funding arrangements support reasonable fee arrangements in Catholic parish schools. In addition to Labor's clear commitment to match the government's current funding arrangements, Catholic schools will benefit from a range of other initiatives: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • an Evidence Institute for Schools to provide high quality research • an extra $300 million to ensure students with disability get the support they need at school • a National Principals' Academy to provide advanced leadership training and support • improve the quality of teacher education. 	The Greens believe that federal funding to the school education system should be on the basis of need and equity to ensure that all Australian children have the opportunity to fulfil their best educational outcomes.

2. What support will your party provide to help Catholic and other non-government schools upgrade learning facilities and keep pace with enrolment growth, given the rising costs of land, construction and classroom technology?

A Morrison Government will continue to fund the Capital Grants Program (CGP) to support non-government schools to invest in infrastructure to maintain and improve their school facilities. The Morrison Government has increased funding for the CGP by 28% over 2018 levels, resulting in an estimated $890 million of capital funding to non-government schools over the next five years, with the majority of funding going to Catholic schools.	We note that the investment in capital funding for non-government schools increased from 2017 to take account of student enrolment growth. Labor in government will maintain the commitment to capital funding through the Capital Grants Program (CGP) and ensure funding is targeted to population growth areas to ensure access and choice across the entire community.	The Greens will increase the Capital Grants Program funding to $400 million a year and expand it to include public schools so that all schools can build the teaching and learning facilities they need.

3. What is your party's position on the right of religious schools to retain faith-based exemptions from anti-discrimination legislation in relation to staffing, enrolment and policy matters?

COALITION	LABOR	GREENS
The Morrison Government's commitment to striking an appropriate balance is clear in our proposed amendments to the Sex Discrimination Act 1984. We have sought to ensure religious educational Institutions can teach and maintain rules consistent with their faith. We recognise that parents need to be informed and empowered in a way that allows them to exercise their rights to make informed decisions regarding when it is appropriate to exclude their children from any particular teaching in a class that is specifically inconsistent with that family's morals or religious beliefs. It is also a feature of the Australian Federation that classroom attendance policies are primarily a matter for the States and	Labor respects the right of all Australians to practise their religion freely. In our platform we declare: "Labor supports the appropriate protection of the religious freedom of all people." The Deputy Leader of the Opposition, Tanya Plibersek, made our position on the rights of religious schools very clear in Parliament when she stated, "Schools are also entitled to have rules that ensure staff - and I'm quoting one of the organisations that wrote to me - don't 'deliberately and wilfully behave contrary to the values of the school.'" Labor is not proposing to amend the indirect discrimination provisions of the Sex Discrimination Act that allow educational institutions to impose reasonable conditions,	The Greens support legislation to enshrine the protection of religious belief. However we also believe that actions (including teachings) must be limited when those actions interfere with the right of Australians to live free from discrimination, even when those actions are based on religious doctrines, tenets and beliefs. This would include actions in relation to the hiring and firing of staff and the enrolment or expulsion of students. We believe that there are sufficient safeguards already contained within our anti-discrimination laws to protect religious teachings, and we believe that where potential conflicts between religious beliefs and the right to be free from discrimination exist they should be considered under a

Territories. If re-elected, a Coalition Government will take a national leadership role by developing model Guidelines to form the basis of a national framework that regularises and makes clear parents' and guardians' rights to request the removal of a child from a class that contains instruction on religious or moral matters, to ensure their rights are consistently understood and applied in all Australian schools, regardless of jurisdiction.

requirements or practices in accordance with the doctrines, tenets, beliefs or teachings of a particular religion or creed.

At the same time, Labor is committed to reducing discrimination in Australian society where it can be done in a responsible way that respects freedom of belief and conscience. We do not believe that freedom of religion and freedom from discrimination are mutually exclusive. To that end, Labor believes that students and teachers and other staff of religious schools should be protected from discrimination on the basis of gender, sexuality and other attributes covered by the Sex Discrimination Act.

comprehensive charter of rights.

4. Catholic schools are providing an increasing number of pre-school services for families that chose Catholic education. What will your party do to support this important stage of early childhood education?

COALITION	LABOR	GREENS
The Morrison Government will provide more than $440 million to states and territories for preschool in 2019 and $450 million in 2020 under the National Partnership on Universal Access to Early Childhood Education. This also includes funding to develop and implement strategies to increase preschool attendance rates among disadvantaged and indigenous children. The extension of the National Partnership will ensure almost 350,000 children in Australia have access to 15 hours of quality early learning a week, or 600 hours a year, in the year before school. This extension takes our overall investment in preschool to $2.8 billion since elected.	Labor will establish a new $1.75 billion National Pre-School and Kindy Program which will guarantee every three and four year old will be able to access the early education they need for the best start to life. Labor will work with all relevant stakeholders including the states and territories and non-government sector to deliver the program. We are mindful that the implementation of the program will occur across a range of contexts that vary from State to State. We are committed to ensuring all children can access preschool in every setting in every state and territory, and that parent choice is respected. We are determined to ensure this policy benefits all three and four year olds in non-government as well as government and community run preschools and kindergartens, long day care centres and school site located early learning centres,	The Greens will ensure universal early childhood education for 3 and 4-years-olds and extend the available hours of preschool from 15 to 24 per week. Our commitment to extending the National Partnership Agreement for Universal Access to Early Childhood Education on an ongoing basis will genuinely ensure every child, everywhere in the country, has optional access to 24 hours a week of a quality early learning program. In addition, the Greens' policy on child care will make it fee-free for 80% - or four out of five – families in Australia. We will also abolish the activity test to access the childcare subsidy. To ensure access in areas of high First Nations populations and high levels of disadvantage, the Greens will allocate a proportion of the Community Child Care Fund (CCCF) for

which have become a feature of the Catholic school sector in recent years. Labor believes parents and carers should be free to choose the setting that best suits their child's needs.

quality community-controlled and culturally safe integrated early years' services. We will develop and implement a workforce strategy with the early learning sector and unions to achieve professional pay and better working conditions for educators and carers. The Greens will also provide grants worth $200m for centres in areas of high need to reduce waiting lists.
